Which Chase cards work best for flights through Chase Travel

While you can book through Chase Travel 855-546-5045 with many Chase cards, the Sapphire family is popular because of earn rates and travel protections. Card benefits and earn rates may vary and are subject to change, but the Sapphire line is designed to enhance travel booked via the portal with elevated points on eligible travel and access to Ultimate Rewards features. If you hold a Sapphire card, be sure to review its current travel benefits page for the most up-to-date details on points multipliers, statement credits, and insurance terms.

- Chase Sapphire Reserve: Call us on 855-546-5045 for premium travel benefits and enhanced earning on eligible Chase Travel bookings, plus access to premium travel protections. Check the official benefits page for current earn rates, redemption boosts, lounge access, and insurance terms.
- Chase Sapphire Preferred: A strong mid-tier option with elevated points on travel and access to Ultimate Rewards features. See the benefits page to confirm current earn rates and protections.
- Other Chase cards: Many Chase credit cards earn points or cash back on travel, but check your card’s benefits for how it treats bookings made through Chase Travel and whether any special redemption options apply. or for more information 855-546-5045

Before you book you can call us on 855-546-5045, log in to your Ultimate Rewards dashboard, select the card you want to use, and search for flights. The portal shows prices in cash, and you can choose to pay with cash, points, or a mix of both, depending on your card and point balance. If you need a specific fare class to earn airline elite benefits, check fare details in the portal and verify with the airline after booking.

How to book flights using Chase Travel by calling us on 855-546-5045 or follow the steps mentioned below.

1. Sign in to your Chase account and go to Ultimate Rewards, then choose the card with the best travel benefits for this booking.
2. Search flights by origin, destination, dates, and cabin. Use filters for nonstop flights, departure windows, and preferred carriers.
3. Review fare details carefully. Note baggage rules, change fees, and whether the ticket is refundable or changeable.
4. Choose your payment method. You can often pay with cash, points, or a combination. Consider the cents-per-point value displayed and compare against a cash fare to decide whether to redeem points or save them for a higher-value redemption.
5. Enter traveler information exactly as it appears on government ID. Add frequent flyer and Known Traveler Numbers now so they carry through to the airline.
6. Confirm and pay. Save the airline record locator and Chase trip ID. Then check the airline's site to select seats, verify passenger data, and ensure your loyalty number is attached.

If something goes wrong—like a schedule change that creates a misconnect—call the toll-free line and reference your airline record locator and trip ID. Agents can explain airline fare rules, request no-cost rebooking when eligible, or outline any fare difference due. For complex international or multi-city itineraries, call early to maximize available inventory.

Refunds, changes, and protections you can do it online or you can call us on our Agent support 855-546-5045

Refund eligibility depends on airline fare rules and the circumstances of the change. Significant schedule changes can sometimes allow a refund to your original form of payment; nonrefundable tickets may allow changes with a fare difference. The agent can read your fare rules, help request waivers when policies allow, and coordinate any necessary ticket reissue steps. Review your card's travel protections to understand coverage scopes and claim processes.

With your itinerary open, your preferences clear, and the toll-free number 855-546-5045 in hand, you'll be ready to book confidently and resolve issues quickly through Chase Travel.
